

The Hawaii Five-O Home Page!

Hawaii Five-O was the longest continuous-run police series in television history, airing from September 1968 to April 1980. It was filmed entirely on location in Hawaii. The authenticity and beauty of the scenery is listed by its fans as the number one draw; second come the actors and the characters they portrayed.

Another attraction is the intelligent writing and intriguing plots of the series, and its wonderful title theme and incidental music. Its authenticity was further enhanced by the use of many local Island residents in guest roles, which for some -- such as Thomas Fujiwara and Kwan Hi Lim -- led to further roles in other series.

Jack Lord played Steve McGarrett, head of an elite four-man state police unit investigating serious felonies. James MacArthur played his second-in-command Danny ("Danno") Williams, with Island actors Kam Fong, Zulu, Al Harrington, and Herman Wedemeyer, among others, playing other members of the team. The series was famous for the stellar guest actors who appeared in episodes, including Helen Hayes, Ricardo Montalban, Leslie Nielsen, Herbert Lom, Hume Cronyn, and many others.

FLASH NEWS!! KVOZ-TV (Channel 12) in Bellingham, WA is starting to show Five-O again as of Monday, February 5th from Monday to Friday at 9:00 a.m.!! Let's hope it's not just a temporary filler!
